Dr Yi-Chung Liu (Gloria)

Advocator

Dr Yi-Chung Liu (Gloria) is Associate Researcher at the National Science and Technology Center for Disaster Reduction (NCDR). Her research is intersected by disaster risk reduction, emergency management, community resilience, climate adaptation, and disaster recovery. Dr. Liu has led multiple community-based disaster risk management (CBDRM) efforts in Taiwan, involving localized model development, policy making, and national program initiation in the past 20 years. She also implemented international collaboration projects in Malaysia, Nepal, United Arab Emirates (UAE), the Philippines, and Republic of Palau, where she developed successful programs benefiting marginalized populations, vulnerable groups, local governments and college students. She is also well recognized for her outstanding abilities to work collaboratively with multi-disciplinary researchers, public sectors, NGOs and grassroots organizations.
